

GACD Board of Trustees

Trustee 2026/27 (finance)

Dear Candidate,

Thank you for your interest in becoming a trustee of GACD Action.

GACD Action (known as GACD) coordinates a unique alliance of international research funders, which collectively supports global research to tackle chronic non-communicable diseases (NCDs). GACD aims to provide essential evidence on the most effective ways to prevent, diagnose or manage these chronic conditions in poorly resourced countries or within underserved populations, to improve health equity within and between countries around the world. This is a critical endeavour as NCDs currently cause three quarters of all deaths around the world and the numbers are unfortunately only increasing.

You will join GACD as it enters the second year of its Strategic Plan 2025-30, with recent coordinated investment by funders on priority focus areas i) strengthening health systems and ii) harnessing multisectoral approaches to tackle NCDs. The next focus will be the hugely neglected area of NCDs in children and youth. The recent two years has also seen overwhelming interest in our training events, and we are considering further innovative ways to cascade our knowledge and resources, while retaining the personal and peer learning valued so much by participants.

This is an exciting time for GACD as we are working strenuously to encourage further and more diverse funding organisations to join the alliance, broadening our global reach and increasing the support that can be offered. The executive team is strongly supported in this activity by existing funders within the alliance.

The GACD Board of Trustees draws on the expertise and experience of national and international individuals with a diverse set of skills. All are engaged around the common mission of GACD and together, the trustees provide comprehensive governance to this unique charity and helps enable its global effort to improve the health of some the world's most underserved people.

This is a key opportunity to become involved in a unique endeavour in one of the most important areas of health today.

About GACD

GACD:

- has collectively invested $450m USD in research to tackle NCDs in underserved communities
- project research takes place in more than 85 countries worldwide
- nurtures a Research Network of more than 1,300 scientists globally
- has trained 388 researchers at 'Implementation Science Schools' with 80% trainees from LMICs
- projects have delivered more than 1,000 publications to the global knowledge base
- projects (30) are already delivering tangible impact on policy and practice for NCDs.

Our focus: chronic non-communicable diseases

The international funding agencies (GACD Associate Members) who ally in GACD have recognised that chronic non-communicable diseases such as cardio-metabolic disease (including hypertension, diabetes, obesity chronic kidney disease), cancers, lung diseases and mental health conditions are the major cause of death and disability worldwide.

The WHO reports that:

- Non-communicable diseases (NCDs) kill 41 million people each year, equivalent to 74% of all deaths globally.

- Each year, 17 million people die from a NCD before age 70.
- 86% of these premature deaths occur in low- and middle-income countries.
- Poverty is closely linked with NCDs, marginalised and socially disadvantaged people get sicker and die sooner and particularly in low-resource settings, health-care costs for NCDs quickly drain household resources.

Our mission

The GACD mission is to reduce the burden of chronic NCDs in low- and middle-income countries (LMICs) and in underserved groups such as Indigenous Populations facing conditions of inequity in high-income countries (HICs). We do this by building evidence to inform national and international NCD policies and contribute to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals under section 3.4.

Our strategy

GACD's strategic intent is to support research and investigators around the world to purposefully generate evidence with the strongest potential to inform national and international policies for the prevention and control of NCDs in underserved populations experiencing health disparities, wherever they may be. Enabling diverse, relevant, collaborative and equitable partnerships in the projects GACD supports is critical to delivering sustainable solutions that can have real impact.

What we do

Working as an alliance, GACD has to date supported eleven calls for research across the major NCDs and invested more than more than $450m USD in 205 projects. GACD has evolved from research calls for single diseases, to offer scope for a more holistic real-world approach to tackling priorities in NCDs. More recent research calls have focussed for example, on improving management of multiple long-term conditions, strengthening integrated health systems and taking a multi sector approach to disease prevention. The GACD Research Network now comprises more than 1,300 committed researchers working collaboratively across institutions in more than 85 countries worldwide. Members of the Network are brought together at events throughout the year to foster shared knowledge and insight. GACD staff also host a range of training resources and events such as our implementation science schools for researchers and others globally who are interested in improving their skills and expertise to ensure their ability to lead and deliver relevant, sustainable and impactful research.

Impact

We want all our research to make a real difference to people living with non-communicable diseases (NCDs) around the world. We do this by funding research with the strongest potential to inform national and international policies for the prevention and control of NCDs in low- and middle- income countries (LMICs). We have evolved a proactive strategy for encouraging the likelihood of impact encouraging collaboration and networking across fields of research and health sectors.

GACD wants its research to make a real difference to people living with NCDs around the world.

GACD governance

As a CIO, GACD is governed under a constitution which sets out the charitable purposes and the role and responsibilities of the trustees. Since 1 January 2025, GACD has registered with the Charity Commission for England and Wales as Charity no. 1174867, and has recently submitted its first independent Annual Report of Trustees. Prior to this date, GACD was registered as a linked charity to the Medical Research Foundation and reported under charity number 1138223-22.

The role of the Board of Trustees is to oversee the management of GACD in pursuit of its mission and to ensure it complies with the appropriate legal and regulatory requirements. Under the governance structure, trustees are also members of GACD with powers to amend the constitution. In both roles, individual trustees have limited liability for any potential GACD debts.

The international funding agencies who are committed to the mission and are active contributors to GACD's annual income, are recognised in the constitution as Associate Members of GACD. Senior representatives from the Associate Members convene as the GACD Strategy Board which provides informed advice on strategy and programmatic activities to the Board of Trustees. The latest GACD Strategic Plan 2025-2030 is published on the GACD website.

GACD Board of Trustees

The GACD Board of Trustees usually comprises five trustees. This includes two members of the GACD Strategy Board (Chair and Vice Chair of the Strategy Board). The Board of Trustees comprises individuals with expertise and experience in global health, research funding, organisational leadership, financial and charity management.

Trustees are appointed for such term (not exceeding three years) as agreed by the Board of Trustees. Provided they remain eligible for appointment, trustees may be reappointed for a further term.

The current members of the GACD Board of Trustees are listed here: <https://www.gacd.org/about/people-and-organisation/trustees>

The Board usually meets four times a year, and meetings take place online via Zoom teleconference (for up to two hours). Trustees are not remunerated, although reasonable expenses may be reimbursed.

Trustee role description

What you will do

As a GACD trustee, you will:

- Ensure that GACD has a clear strategy in line with its charitable objects.
 - Ensure GACD functions within all applicable legal and regulatory requirements and in line with its governing document and agreed policies, continually striving for best practice in governance.
 - Ensure sound financial health and accountability, overseeing budget approval and financial reporting.
 - Promote and develop GACD in order for it to grow and maintain its global public benefit.
 - Ensure that key risks are identified, monitored, managed and mitigated effectively, and that systems are in place to take advantage of opportunities that arise.
 - Take appropriate professional advice in all matters where there may be a material risk to GACD.
 - Provide appropriate strategic oversight, support and challenge to the Chief Executive.
 - Ensure the GACD has the proper arrangements in place for the appointment, supervision, support, appraisal and remuneration of the Chief Executive.
 - Safeguard the good name and values of GACD.

About you
